Pat Wheeler

*1 year as a volunteer
Peer Counselor*

Pat Wheeler has been a volunteer at the Lloyd Center PRC for nearly a year. She balances many different roles in her daily life. To name a few, she is wife, mother, nurse, and grandma to her wonderful grandkids. She came to the center with a nursing background, specifically with OB patients. Last September she was laid off by her employer, and found herself with a little extra free time, and a heart full of compassion to serve.

Pat currently serves as a peer-counselor Friday mornings. She is passionate about sharing smiles as well as tears with her clients. When she thinks of what she enjoys about working at the center, she expresses her love for the time of prayer and fellowship with staff members and fellow volunteers. During this special time, she experiences God working at PRC. Pat leaves the center each week feeling refreshed, needed, and inspired by the ministry. Hearing the clients' stories and sharing in their lives brings a deep sense of purpose to her work at PRC. In the future, Pat is hoping to go through the Pregnancy Resource Center's ultrasound training in hopes of bringing her nursing skills to bless the ministry further. We are so appreciative of her unique contributions, as well as her willingness to faithfully serve.
